FOR THE KENTUCKY GAZETTE The affection of a mother for her babe is passing strong and beautiful-it survives the last throb of love for the father; nay, it flourishes best in the wreck of all other affections of the heart, like the ivy on the wall of the desolated tower-where naught else is green. In one of my rambles, I heard a plaint that, musing on it afterwards, resolved itself into the following stanzas that I shall call

THE LAY OF THE DESERTED ONE. He spurn'd my pray'r-call'd it 'madness'-He who robb'd my heart of gladness--Then left me a prey to sadness And misery.

I ask of him -- tho' slight the boon-A shelter from the world!—as soon I'd ask a stone or the cold Moon For charity!

My babe look'd in his face-and smil'd; It touch'd my heart whose pulse beat wild -I saw the Father in the Child. In that dear smile.

As when he smil'd in the old time;-Ere the live-long day Sin and Crime Rung in my ear, familiar chime-A long, long while

Ago, it seems; I lov'd him then, And fondly deem'd him first of men; Now with the Tiger in his den I'd rather live

And nurse his cubs, and starve on prey That Hunger loathes, than but to stay Beneath a roof where he could say-"Tis mine to give!"

A curse hath crept upon my heart Since Innocence and me, to part-How like a guilty thing, I start!-He told Lov's joy.

He hath a bride; and now he swears To cherish her. The curse that wears But for my Boy!

My innocent and merry Thing! The Lark may carol on the wing-The mocking-bird may blithely sing --Thy tiny voice

Is sweeter far. A kiss, a kiss. And another added to this, Are now, my child, my only bliss--But I rejoice!

We further learn that the general Agent of the Sanative has the liberty to refer his fellow citizens to Dr. Hewitt, for two very interesting cases which came within the knowledge of the which followed the suspension, it is a Doctor. One of the cures as we learn, was effected upon a young lady afflicted with "Lum-BER ABSCESS"—and so serious was her com-plaint, that she was unable to submit to Dr. H's. sual mode of treatment in such cases. He advised her to try the Sanative; she did so, and refore taking one phial, was entirely cured and not a vestige of her disease remains!!! Another: A gentleman, aged 45, pronounced by all who knew him to be in a "Confirmed Conumption," was wonderfully restored to health y the use of only one phial of the Sanative and he is now well and about his daily business
